The increasing use of performance in museums and at heritage sites has been the subject of much comment and controversy within popular, professional and academic circles. Performing heritage addresses these debates directly, and is the first book to bring together the range of voices, debates and practices that now constitute the fields of museum theatre and live interpretation.

Case studies from the UK, South Africa, the USA, Germany, and Vanuatu all grapple with the many and contested definitions of heritage, and provide insights into the ways in which performance can engage with and interrogate heritage in contrasting cultural and social settings.

The chapters are grounded in field research, and use diverse approaches and theoretical frameworks to analyse the range, scope and impact of that practice.

As questions are increasingly being asked about the nature and uses of heritage and the place of performance within all aspects of human endeavour, this timely, and at times provocative, book significantly advances our understanding of what ‘heritage’ can and might mean for our culturally complex societies, now and in the future.

Inspiring and challenging in its scope and level of debate, Performing heritage crosses the disciplines of performance and museum/heritage studies and offers remarkable and timely insights into the processes, outcomes and potential of this rich and rapidly developing practice, in an international context. The book productively brings together academic research and professional practice, and will be essential reading for all those interested in, and concerned with the future of, ‘heritage’ and its interpretation.

Anthony Jackson is Emeritus Professor of Educational Theatre at the University of Manchester. Jenny Kidd is Lecturer in Cultural Policy at City University, London.

Contents:
I. VISITORS, AUDIENCES AND EVENTS
1. Engaging the audience: negotiating performance in the museum: Anthony Jackson
2. ‘Watching me, watching you’: performance and performativity in the museum: Helen Rees Leahy
3. Creating heritage experiences through architecture: Alke Gröppel-Wegener
4. The space of museum theatre: a framework for performing heritage: Paul Johnson

II. RE-VISIONING HERITAGE: RECOVERY AND INTERPRETATION
5. The ‘Doing’ of Heritage: heritage as performance: Laurajane Smith
6. Intangible Heritage and the performance of identity: Marilena Alivizatou
7. Authenticity and metaphor: displaying Intangible Human Remains in museum theatre: Anna Farthing

III. RE-CREATING HERITAGE(s)
8. Interpreting Msinsi: culture, tourism and story-telling in the Isimangaliso Wetland Park: Emma Durden and Nicky du Plessis

IV. IMPACT, PARTICIPATION AND DIALOGUE
9. Nostalgia for the future of the past: Baz Kershaw
11. A la Ronde – eccentricity, heritage and the end of the world: Phil Smith
12. Triangle’s Immersive Museum Theatre: performativity, historical interpretation and research in-role: Richard Talbot and Norwood Andrews

VI. PERFORMING HERITAGE AND THE CONTEMPORARY WORLD
13. Mirror Neurons and Simulation: the role of the spectator in museum theatre: Catherine Hughes
14. ‘The costume of openness’: participatory performance in heritage environments: Jenny Kidd
15. Performing Human Rights: engaging visitors in dialogue at two historic site Museums of Conscience: Joel Challen
16. “For a little road it is not. For it is a great road; it is long”: performing heritage for development in the Cape: Mark Fleishman